Strong architectural lines and natural finishes characterise this modern three-storey home on the slopes of Lion's Head overlooking Bantay Bay.

From the main entrance, a waterfeature, a rinfow pool and the sea create a striking blue triangle, complemented by varying shades of green in the triple-volume indoor garden and natural finishes that include sandblasted white marble and teak floors in the living areas on the middle level.

In the lounge, an alcove in the stone feature wall houses a reclining bronze illuminated by overhead pendants, and the curved opposite wall contains a fireplace and conceals a narrow glazed floor to ceiling slot that admits the setting sun. Folding glass doors open onto a large balcony with magnificent sea and mountain views.

A central steel staircase with Maple treads links the three storeys and defines the left and right wings of the house, with three bedrooms on the top floor and a guest suite and second lounge on the lower level.

Kitchen features include a central preparation island that is half wood-topped breakfast
